THE SUNDAY-SCHOOL LESSON. "The Ethopian Converted." (Acts

viii, 26-40.) Prepared for The Republic by the Reverend J

The spirit of God that had guided the writers of Holy Writ spoke to Philip and directed him to join himself to the chariot for an interview. There were many considerations that might have deterred any man from such a course. One was of Cushite origin, of black skin, of high station, a foreigner who might not be approached by another so far removed by language, custom, nationality and position. But they had this in common—they received the oracles of God and counted themselves children of the covenant of grace. Besides, long before this Philip had learned to yield himself to the authoritative words of the Holy Spirit. 5. What is indicated concerning the Jewish Scriptures by the fact that the eunuch was rotteding? 6. What was probably the method of teaching employed by Philip? 7. What other notable cases of a single hear er are recorded in the New Testament? 8. Why was the ordinance of baptism adhistered by the learned of the covenant of grace. Besides, long before this Philip had learned to yield himself to the authoritative words of the Holy Spirit. 5. What is indicated concerning the Jewish Scriptures by the fact that the eunuch was corputations of teaching employed by Philip? 7. What other notable cases of a single hear er are recorded in the New Testament? 8. Why was the ordinance of baptism additionally and position. But they had this indicated concerning the Jewish Scriptures by the fact that the eunuch was for the rotteding of teaching employed by Philip? 7. origin, of black skin, of high station, a foreigner who might not be approached by smother so far removed by language, custom, nationality and position. But they had this in common—they received the oracles of God and counted themselves children of the covenant of grace. Besides, long before this Philip had learned to yield himself to the authoritative words of the Holy Spirit. He had come too far now to resist. There was, withal, an earnest desire to serve his fellow, and he yielded to the prompting, and was soon walking by the side of the chariot of the man whom he had never seen till then.

THE QUESTION (Verses 20 and 21)—Here was a most favorable opportunity. Philip, who knew the way of life, was brought into close relation with one who desired to know the way. As he heard the Ethiopian read he gentily inquired whether he understood, which was quite the same as to proffer his assistance if there was enything obscure or difficult requiring explanation. The question was not regarded with displeasure. On the contrary, it drew out a response showing that it had been thankfully heard, and the truth seeker replied that he could not be expected to understand without a teacher. This was a confession that the words contained a meaning that had not been fathomed, and that like all honest men, this government official desired information from another. There followed a cordial request which Philip gladly granted, to come up into the charlot and act as interpreter All this reveals the state of the man's mind. He was well prepared to be a learner. If now he does not come into a large and clear piace and heartily accept the gospel, it will be the fault of his teacher.

THE SCRIPTURE—(Verses 22 and 23). The passage upon which the eunuch had been meditating is very familiar to all Christians. It is recorded in Isalah (Chapter lili, 7, 8), and probably it was read from the Septuagint version of the Greek. The original was written seven centuries before. It had been strangely misunderstood or neglected altogether by the learn

THE SERMON.—(Verses 24 and 25). Philip has become court preacher. His audience consisted of one person. Preacher and hearer were together in the chariot of the latter. The eager listener, who has exhausted his own power of investigation, has solicited what the other was sent to deliver. It was at the end of a question mark that the gospel sermon began. The text was one that since that day has been the basis of many discourses. "He was led as a sheep to the slaughter, and like a lamb dumb before his shearers, so he opened not his mouth, in his humiliation his judgment was taken away." There is no record of the sermon delivered. It was extemporaneous. Philip preserved no abstract. The eunuch had no time to do more than listen. The theme was Jesus—his sacrifice by the cross the old story told by thousands of believers to millions of seekers. As the chariot moved along the desert way toward Gaza, the faithful minister, in an orderly way, expounded the Scripture, showing how the old thiopian. THE SERMON.—(Verses 24 and 25). Phil-prophecies, so long obscure, pointed unerringly to the man of Galliee who gave himself a ransom for many.

THE BAPTISM—(Verses 35, 37 and 38)
Gradually the light broke into the mind of the Ethiopian cunuch as Philip expounded the Scripture. The passage about which had clustered such mystery was made luminous with the doctrine of the crucified Christ. As generally occurs that which had given most perplexity afforded chief comfort. At last as the chariot approached either a spring or stream of water sufficient for the purpose, the einuch offered himself as a candidate for haptism. He appears to have understood the mode by which one avowed his faith—indeed, he himself had embraced Judaism by that method. It has been thought by some that Philip had informed his convert on the subject, as the original instruction of the master required.
(Mark xvi, 16.) No witnesses were present.
No vows were assumed. No imposing ceremony was instituted. One condition only was required—faith in Jesus Christ as the Son of Ged. On confession of that the baptism was administered. By what mode?
Let each settle that disputed question for himself.

THE SEPARATION—(Verses 33 and 40.)

The discussion turned entirely on the conduct of the war in the Philippines, and related especially to General Funston's capture of Aguinaldo. Senator Teller inquired whether if this treaty had been in force at the time the method of Aguinaldo's captura could have been justified. Senator Burton replied to the inquiry, speaking especially for General Funston, and said that the proceeding on the General's part had been in accordance with the rules of civilized warfare. It was true, he said, that General Funston and his force had acted somewhat in the capacity of spies, but what they had done had been in the line of honorable warfare.

REFUELIC SPECIAL Bowling Green, Mo., March 14.-The trial of Daniel Bowen, charged with the murder of Wright Gillum, continued to-day with unabated interest. The crowds in attendance grew larger at each session, and as the story of the bitter feud that existed between the two men for so many years, is unfolded the interest becomes more and more intense. Bowen's family, consisting of his aged mother, wife and seven children, came up from their home in Ashley in a hack this morning, and unloaded at the Courthouse steps just as the jury filed into the box. Mrs. C. B. Gillum, the mother of the dead man, has not missed a minute of the trial. This morning she left her home shortly after sun up, and was in her seat within the court railing long before Judge

Eby rapped for order.

The defense opened with an exhibition of guns and a discussion of firearms which were proven to have been owned and carried by Gillum.

The first witness was J. C. Etz of Macon, who travels for a St. Louis hardware house.
He testified that he sold Gillum last August
on a special order a 32-caliber Winchester magazine gun, together with a supply of cartridges charged with smokeless powder
and soft-pointed balls.
Senator Ball had the gun, pistols, belt and cartridges in court and introduced them as evidence. Each member of the jury inspected these exhibits carefully in a grave manner, and then E. M. Pilcher, a jeweler and gunsmith, explained the workings of the gun and "mushroom" shells. He declared the rifle would send a ball four miles and would easily kijl a man at a distance of two miles.

William McGinnis, a negro, next testified.

and would easily kill a man at a distance of two miles.

William McGinnis, a negro, next testified.
According to his story he was trading in Gillum's store and noting the pistol buckled around his waist, asked what it meant, when Gillum said: "It means a man can't go to the Post Office without being armed in this town," and then pointing to the corner, he added, "and I have a Winchester there which will kill a man anywhere down the road." there which will kill a man anywhere down the road."

S. I. Moxiey and Sterling Hamlett testified as to the bad feeling between the men, telling about Gillum declaring that he had about run Bryant out of the mercantile business and that he proposed to "run old Dan Bowen out." Hamlett testified as to threats Gillum had made against Bowen, but on cross-examination be told of an occasion upon which he was talking to Gillum, when Bowen came up and cursed and abused Gillum roundly, Gillum hanging his head and walking away, whereupon Bowen said. "That's the way with the coward. There is no light in him."

Half a dozen other witnesses were exmained relative to the ill feeling between the men, threats made, etc.

It now seems that the case will be con-cluded by the end of the week.

BANK SUES TRANSIT COMPANY—
The American Exchange Bank filed suit yesterday in the Circuit Court against the St. Louis Transit Company for $120, the value of coupons on four bonds of the Union Depot Company. Two of the bonds belonged to Lennie V. Johnson, and two to Anne J. Starling, it is stated. The coupons were assigned to the bank, and have been lost or destroyed, and the St. Louis Transit Company refused to pay them, it is stated.

MORE PRESSURE ON NEW YORK. Letters to Governor Odell Urge Big Appropriation.

Martin H. McGlynn of Albany, N., Y., member of the National World's Fair Commission, has telegraphed to President Francis the information that the Senate Finance Committee of the Empire State Legislature has agreed to report a recommendation for a World's Fair appropriation of $100,000, with a provision for a commission of twelve members.

members.

This disposition on the part of the New York legislators is not regarded at the general offices of the Exposition Company with any more favor than the pending bill in that State, providing for an appropriation of £5,000. The pressure which is being brought to bear on Governor Odell continues to pour into the executive office at Albany in the form of letters from prominent business men of New York City.

FIRST CERTIFICATE PREMIUM.

Treasurer's Competitive Idea for Winning World's Fair Honor. Treasurer William H. Thompson of the Exposition Company has decided to settle, the competition which he has found to ex ist over the honor of holding Certificate No. 1 of the Exposition stock, by awarding this certificate to the stockholder paying the largest premium for the honor.

He will make an official announcement of the conditions as soon as the plates from which the certificates will be printed, are ready.

REPUBLIC SPECIAL. Washington, March 14.—Both Senators Culiom and Mason refused to call on Governor Yates yesterday, when the latter was in the city. This is the first time the Governor has been in Washington, when there has been not an interchange of courtesies. The Governor did not notify either of the Senators that he intended to visit Washington, although he sent numerous telegrams to that effect to President Roosevelt. When Mr. Cullom was asked to-day why he did not see Mr. Yates he said:

It matters not how long you have suffered from Stricture, nor how many different doctors have disappointed you, I will cure you just as certainly as you come to me for treatment. I will not do it by cutting or dilating. My treatment is new, entirely original with me, and perfectly painless, it completely dissolves the Stricture and permanently removes every obstruction, allays all inflammation and swelling, reduces the prostate gland when enharged, cleanses and heals the blacker and kidneys when irritated or congested, invigorates the organs and restores health and soundness to every part of the body affected by the disease.

I also cure to stay cured VARICOCELE, STRICTURE CONTAGIOUS BLOOD POISON, NERVOUNDEBILITY and all associate diseases and weaknessed of men. To those maiadies alone I have earnestly devoted 20 of the best years of my life. Physicians having stubborn cases are cordially invited to consult with in writing to hold for my promise. Is it not worth your while to investigate a cure that has made life anew to multitudes of men?
